Human Equipment THIS brief study deals with the problem of the right use of things that problem of mans relation to his material equipment which, like the poor, is always with us, growing increasingly difficult as civilization develops. We become acutely conscious of this problem in times of business stress, but the true causes of the suffering that arouses us lie further back in our conduct during periods of prosperity. Thus the problem is one of universal import, with application to life in every time. Life would be simple and its issues easily solved if it were statical and not growing.
