What would you do if you had one year to live your dream? Broadway. It's the dream that keeps 17 year old Landyn King going, even on the hardest days. Since she was five years old, she's dedicated herself to the world of theatre; determined to make it in the big leagues. It's all she eats, sleeps, and breathes, and as soon as she turns 18, she's escaping her small town and moving out to the city to follow her dream. But all of that changed in one single instant. Even though, despite medical odds, she has been combating a rare form of Ridley's Disease since she was seven, a new tumor found on her brain gives Landyn approximately one year to live. She has one year to make it on Broadway and to achieve the dream that she has desperately wanted for almost her entire life. Determined not to take any charity, she decides not to tell anyone about her disease. She is committed to making it the old-fashioned, pounding the pavement way. The question stands however: will she make it before her time is up?
