A Students Work for C Students focuses on the need of our education system to develop and encourage risk taking in our students. The American education system today teaches our top students to be risk averse and discourages our average students through false academic achievement. Students should know why they are in school -- and it is not to achieve good grades. America is built on small business - almost thirty million of them. The entrepreneurial spirit to start and build new businesses has historically been the domain of the average student - the C student as a risk taker. Our system should continue to encourage that enterprise.
