When Richard Heath's uncle wills him his fortune—on the condition that he marry within a year—shy, unassuming Richard finds himself beset with eligible women. There's beautiful, fortune-hunting Sylvia Grainger; plain and practical Mary Powell; and his uncle's choice of a bride, the exotic Ursuline Chaudières. How can Richard ever decide on a wife when each lady tugs at his heart in a different way? As the deadline for fulfilling the terms of the will approaches, Richard's hope of marrying is no closer to being fulfilled—until a surprising betrayal leads Richard to a wife more precious than any earthly inheritance.

This edition of the 1892 classic Christian novella includes a biography of the author.
